Learning Care Group

Knowledge is Power in this Workplace

When the Learning Care Group (LCG) decided to upgrade its corporate offices, they were studious in their approach. To help them gather facts, NBS led a field trip to Steelcase headquarters. One insight that appealed to LCG was the Power of Place to boost employee engagement and performance. Applying this concept became a guiding principle in the renovation.

To start, NBS conducted a programming audit. Based on this research, we developed a more flexible, forward-looking space plan. In a seamless handover, NBS Construction Solutions then produced the required documentation, demolition and reconstruction—without disrupting ongoing operations in occupied spaces. To help ensure the project's success, LCG created a cross-functional team that provided valuable input and feedback throughout the process while cultivating a shared sense of purpose across the organization.

One of the new spaces designed for these educators is dubbed the reading room, a quiet retreat with lounge seating for contemplation or conferring with a colleague. On a larger scale, camaraderie is reinforced through improved sightlines created by removing certain interior walls and replacing others with modular NxtWall glass partitions.

Moderco operable walls support LCG's growing company and need for flexibility. This large training room, dubbed "The Learning Center", can be reconfigured into a variety of small and large spaces for teams to work, collaborate and learn with or without technology.

New value was created in their existing real estate by installing operable walls that provide the flexibility to reconfigure workspaces. These walls move easily to convert an expansive room into smaller, more practical spaces. Alternatively, small adjoining spaces can be combined into a big meeting or training room. Both large gatherings and small group work are enabled by projector presentation and communication technologies, as well as sound masking, installed by NBS Audiovisual Solutions.

Idea leadership is an important concept to educators. Now, with the help of the subject matter experts at Steelcase and NBS, the LCG workspace is at the top of its class.
